Alba (Scotland): Past and present

State of Gàidhlig in 1891:

Almost everybody in the district spoke Gàidhlig. Most of the residents did also speak English – to what extent, however, was not registered on the census forms. The six English monolinguals found were all born far away and five of these persons were reported from the village Bun Easain (Bunessan).

Some of the local people did not speak English. Those returns were mainly confined to children less than 10 years of age.

Area description:

The district described is situated on the peninsula An Ros Muileach (Ross of Mull) which forms the south-western part of the Hebridean island of Muile (Mull). The communities involved are made up of the tiny hamlet of Bun Easain (Bunessan) and a few nearby crofting settlements.

Bun Easain acted as administrative and trading centre of this part of Muile and all sorts of craft people and officials were present. Basic occupations in the other settlements were farm related work in one way or another with the odd fisherman around.

Background of Gàidhlig (Scottish Gaelic) Local Profiles:

The 1891 census was the first such enumeration exercise with an unequivocal language question. After more than 100 years the original census forms are publicly available for detailed analysis. During research concerned with the “Gàidhlig (Scottish Gaelic) Local Studies” a vast number of such local statistics have been gathered about the Gàidhlig speaking population of Scotland in that year. As many of these results could not be included in the reports these concise fact-sheets are a welcome way to publish some of the “local gems”. Place of birth and Gàidhlig speaking:

All six persons “with no Gàidhlig” originated from further away. Approximately one sixth of all residents born in the Gaidhealtachd did not speak English.

Notes:

¹ Born either in Kilfinichen & Kilvickeon or in the adjacent parishes of Torosay or Kilninian & Kilmore (all Argyll).

² Born in other parishes of Scotland with more than 50 % Gàidhlig speakers in the 1891 census.

Speakers according to place of birth (1) nearby¹
(2) in remaining *Gaidhealtachd*², or (3) elsewhere

Remarks:

1. Six members of the usually resident population were reported as not speaking Gàidhlig. A baker from Kilmarnock and two of his youngest daughters were part of this small group. A licensed hawker's widow from Bristol, a general merchant's clerk from Glasgow and a retired cowherd from Islay spoke also not the local language.
2. In original census report terms the enumeration district in total had a population of 199 persons of all ages. 156 enumerated inhabitants spoke “Gaelic and English” and 28 persons were reported as monolingual Gàidhlig speakers. These figures lead to an “official” share of Gàidhlig speakers of 92.5 %. A comparison with the more realistic statistics of this fact-sheet reveals that this percentage was a slight under-estimate of 4.1 % mainly caused by the inclusion of under-three olds and visitors in the official population base.
